Unknown lifeform named Orephenoch attack humanity. 3 Heroes named Faiz, Kaixa and Delta fight against Orephenoch and save humanity. Kamen Rider 555 is currently the second newest series of Kamen Rider sequel. Unlike many other old-fashioned Japanese sci-fi productions, this excellent series is the result of combination of intense fighting scenes with martial arts, interesting characters, humour and most important of all, a heart-gripping plot that has a magnetic attraction to viewers. Also there are many twists in this series that allows viewers to form their opinion on each character, reflect upon their actions as the story develops and this is what gives the show such high popularity; its successful effect on viewers. Thus far, I think this series is actually better than the current new 'Kamen Rider Blade' series in terms of character designs, levels of characters in their martial art styles as well as an attractive story line. What the hell happened to Kamen Rider (Masked Rider)? The last movie I saw was KAMEN RIDER AGITO: PROJECT G4 and that was pretty darn good. So I tune into this movie (based somewhat on the series also named KAMEN RIDER 555) and find out there have been some changes in Kamen Rider land. The biggest one is that Kamen Rider is now portrayed by by a scrawny kid with dyed hair who looks like he would be more at home in a Japanese boy band. The story is that in the future the world is overrun by a new species of human hybrids that have almost wiped out all humans. There are still some human freedom fighters, who just happen to all be teens. Flashbacks of BATTLE ROYALE 2 abound with skinny kids in flak jackets trying to act tough dominate the screen. Worst of all, the new Kamen Rider morphs by using his...wait for it...cell phone. Ugh. To the film's credit, the costume design is amazing and there are some cool effects. But all that can't make up for the heaping amounts of teen drama they force upon the viewer. Watch the fights and avoid the rest. 646f9e108c
